

Intentional Parenting

Tuesday October 20, 2020 7:00-8:00 pm

Navigating the throws of parenthood can be challenging and exhausting. Every child comes with their own character and personality traits. Join us as Dawna-Lyn guides us through topics such as what kind of a parent are you going to be, how to communicate effectively with your child, raising responsible children, how to manage sibling rivalry and discipline each child uniquely.

Dawna-Lyn Broadhead

Dawna-Lyn was born in Chile, South America to Canadian Christian missionary parents who were caring, loving and modelled what it meant to rely on God. From an early age she saw them demonstrate coming along side others with advice, encouragement, and help. She lived in Chile until she was eleven before coming to Canada where she finished high school and went on to graduate from college with my ECE (Early Childhood Education). From a very young age and to this day I love to be around children. She enjoys teaching preschoolers, school-aged and teenagers about life - guiding them through all areas of development.

Drawing on over three decades of experience, Dawna-Lyn now offer counsel to all ages, teaching parenting classes, and works with parents as they navigate specific challenges with their children.

You can read more about Dawna-Lyn's services at her website: nextsteps.life